1. A strong private desire to "throughout" recapitulating our position on unrelenting, including indication that surveillance and surveillance would be continued.

2. Simultaneously with the long line message, diplomatic groundwork would be undertaken with the OAS and NATO countries, as well as other key UN countries, for further action in those bodies. He would seek support for:

a. Immediate bilateral representations to Havana by those countries still maintaining relations to the effect that maintenance of the brothers in Cuba and continued refusal by Cuba to a rise to verification and long-term safeguards would be the occasion for the breaking of diplomatic and economic relations.

4. Within forty-eight hours an OAS resolution, reviewing the incompleteness of the Soviet and Cuban performance under the Kennedy-Khrushchev understanding and calling for continued close aerial surveillance and tightening of the quarantine. The US to report its action, together with a formal complaint, to the UN Security Council.

c. Immediately following the UN resolution, both in the UN designed to dramatize the incompleteness of Soviet policies with the Kennedy-Thruschey understanding, and designed to end a UN exhortation to Cuba to cooperate with the UN. This would involve bringing to the surface as much as possible the efforts of U Thant and others.

3. At the time action is sought in the CAS, that is, approximately forty-eight hours after the private message to Khrushchev, a public statement by the President briefly reviewing the history of the Cuban affair, summarizing our interpretation of the Kennedy-Khrushchev understanding, pointing up portions of the understanding which had not been carried out, reiterating the intent of the U. S. Government that the basic conditions of the original understanding be fulfilled, and setting forth the action being sought in the CAS and the UN.

4. Immediately following favorable CAS action, begin a gradual tightening of enforcement of the quarantine, to be carried through the following phases over a ten-day period: initially, applying the interception and hailing, as well as boarding procedures first to Free World non-Soviet charter ships, next to Free World ships in charter to the Soviet, then to bloc ships, and finally to Soviet ships. Subsequently, consideration could be given to adding FCL to the contraband list.

5. Air surveillance would be continued during this period at whatever level required for strictly intelligence purposes, with any position dealt with under the procedures set forth in Mr. Mitze's memorandum of
